Description:

This photograph comes from a small photograph found in Turkey - still appears the name of the photo studio that took it. Torn, it was protected by a plastic film.

Riemer photographed the image, keeping this film and proceeded to a Fuji Flex print that accentuates the shine. The process of enlargement thus reveals the whole history that the found photograph could go through. As always, for the sake of objectivity, the resolution of the image is the same on the entire surface of the final work.
