Description:

Museum of a memory is inspired by the Jetty, a photo-roman movie by Chris Marker entirely based on image-souvenirs. The artist produces a flash-back itself by filming again, shot after shot, the main scene where the protagonists met in the Natural History Museum in Paris.

Instead of a black and white diaporama, there are video shots with evaporating colours and hesitating stillness.

A face to face takes place and unveils the fluctuant frontiers between man and animal, moving and unmoving, life and death, real and fantasy, memory and forgiveness, original and copy.
